APWG eCrime 2025 is uniquely constructed to examine industrial responses to cybercrime as well as to showcase the latest research into counter-cybercrime techniques and technologies. As the only peer-reviewed, publishing research conference focused exclusively on cyber-crime, APWG eCrime is the most important venue for discovering those path-finding, thought-leading managers and investigators your organization has yet to hire. This year's eCrime symposium is titled

"Cybercrimes Only AI and Crimebots Can Dream Of". Beyond soliciting research into cybercrime that inflicts financial losses, as eCrime has since 2006, eCrime 2025's chairs are soliciting presentations and papers addressing challenges in: cyber-physical systems and operational technologies; artificial intelligence; and the interaction between different system layers that are employed or abused by cybercriminals for advancement of larger criminal enterprises.
